TAX ON PRINT PAPER $4 A TON

SENATE REJECTS AMENDMENT TO ADMIT IT FREE.

Senator Balley Votes With the Republiean Majority Against Free Print Paper-Lorimer, New Senator from Illinois, Votes With Organization.

WASHINGTON, June 18 .- The Senate late this afternoon voted down several amendments relating to the duty on print paper and accepted the Finance Committee's amendment, which increases the duty from $2 a ton, as it was fixed in The vote by which the committee emendment was sustained was 44 to 32, one Democratic, Senator Taliaferro of Florida, voting with the majority and the following Republicans voting with the Democrats against the amendment: Beveridge, Bristow, Brown, Burkett, Cummins, Curtis Dolliver, La Follette and Smith of Michigan.

Just before the vote was taken on the committee amendment a test vote was had on an amendment offered by Senator La Follette, which proposed to limit the proposed duty of $4 a ton so that it would continue in force only until July 1, 1912, after which time the rate should be $2 a ton, as provided by the House bill. This amendment was rejected by a vote of 31 ayes to 44 noes. It commanded the land, for Dover and Antwerp: votes of nearly all the Democratic Senators and the following Republicans: Beveridge, Bristow, Brown, Burkett, Clapp, Cummins, Curtis, Dolliver, Jones and La Follette. Senators McEnery and Taliaferro, Democrats, voted against it.

While the duty expressed in the bill is two-tenths of one cent a pound instead of one-tenth of a cent a pound, as given in town and Liverpool: the House bill, it amounts to $4 a ton, as against $2 a ton in the House bill and $6 a ton in the Dingley law.

Before taking up the paper debate Senator Aldrich obtained unanimous consent to reconsider several paragraphs of the chemical schedule. The duty on poric acid, which is 5 cents a pound in the Dingley law, was increased in the present bill from 2 cents a pound, the rate in the House bill, to 3 cents a pound. The duty on oxalicacid, which is admitted free of duty under existing law, was increased from 1 to 2 cents a pound.

Senator Brown of Nebraska and Senator Beveridge of Indiana had a clash with Chairman Aldrich just before the vote was taken on Mr. Brown's free print paper amendment. Sepator Aldrich demanded the ayes and noes on Mr. Brown's amend-While the Senator from Rhode ment. While the Senator from knows Beveridge was seeking recognition of the Chair and showed some warmth because he had not been promptly recognized.

"The Chair will recognize the Senator from Indiana just as soon as the ayes and noes have been obtained," he was

"But the Sen ator from Indiana desires recognition before the ayes and noes are ordered," persisted Mr. Beveridge. In the course of the colloquy Senator Brown offered to modify his amendment by making the duty $2, as provided by the House, instead of making it free. The Chair ruled that, the ayes and noes having been ordered on the Brown amendment. its author could not modify it without unanimous consent. "I object to the unanimous consent." shouted Mr. Aldrich.

organization in his first vote, which was cast against the free print paper amendment The Republican insurgents split on the vote on Mr. Brown's amendment. Senators Borah, Clapp. Cummins, Dolliver, La Follette and Nelson voted against it and Senators Bristow, Brown and Burkett voted for the amendment. The regular Republicans were solidly against it. The votes of Senator Bailey and Senators La Follette and Cummins against Mr. Brown's amendment created something of a sensation and gave rise to another Demogratic row. Senator Stone read the Democratic platform adopted at Denver declaring for free print paper. While he was reading it Senator Aldrich seemed much amused and Senator Bailey much print paper and wood pulp on the free list in accordance with the declaration of the last Democratic national platform was rejected without a roll call. Mr. La Follette explained that the paper factories of Wisconsin are not as advantageously located as some of the mills in New England, and the House rate of $2 a ton on print paper will hardly be sufficient to protect them against Canadian competition. He offered an amendment providing that the rate of duty shall be 34 a ton until July 1, 1912, after which date the rate of duty shall be automatically reduced to $2 a ton. This amendment. Mr. Le Foilette explained, was for the State so as to give paper factories in Wisconsin an opportunity to take up the manufacture of other kinds of paper.

Defending the committee's amendment, which provides a rate of $4 a ton on print paper. Senator Aldrich said that Ontario and Quebec are planning to forbid the exportation of wood and wood pulp from Canada to the United States in an effort to transfer the pulp and paper industries from the United States to Canada. He denied the statements made by several Senators f avoring free paper that there is a scarcity of free paper that there is a scarcity of spruce wood or other wood available for use in the manufacture of paper. Discussing the relative cost of production of paper in this country and in Canada. he said that the wood used alone in paper making costs $4 a ton more in the United States than it does in Canada. The duty proposed by the committee, he added covered only the difference in the cost of the wood in the United States and Canada and did not take into consideration the difference in the cost of labor. ien the difference in the cost of labor. In Wisconsin, he continued, the cost of manufacturing a ton of paper was much higher than in New England and any reduction below the $4 a ton rate reported by the committee would destroy the paper factories of Wisconsin.

In reply to a question by Senator Cum-nins Mr. Aldrich said it was uncertain thether or not the increased rate of duty of the maximum provision of the tariff bill would apply in the event that the provinces of Canada prohibited the exportation of wood and wood pulp. Before the maximum rate could be applied, he said, it would have to be demonstrated that the prohibition by the Canadian Government was an undue discrimina-tion against the United States. To meet such a situation the Finance Committee had pared an amendment to safeguard the rest of the American paper makers.

which will go in operation as soon as any Canadian provinces prohibit the exportation of wood and wood pulp.

Senator Gore said that the duty on print paper should not be made a political issue. He was in favor of free wood pulp and free print paper not because the Denver platform made a declaration in favor of their free admission but he or of their free admission but be-te it was founded on right and justice.

SENATE ADJOURNS WITHOUT POSTPONING VOTE.

Cummins and Bailey Insisted on a Unani-Tariff Bill Have Been Disposed Of.

WASHINGTON, June 18 .- The Senate adjourned at 7 o'clock this evening in York medical school. more or less confusion without reaching an agreement as to the disposition of the pending income tax amendment. Under the previous order made by unanimous consent, the amendment was before the Senate to-day. Senator Bailey made no effort to call it up until within thirty minutes of the hour of adjournment when he served notice on the Senate that in another five minutes he would call for the regular order, which was the income tax amendment, the joint production of the Senator from Texas and Senator Cummins of Iowa.

The Senate was still considering the paragraph relating to print paper, but hurried the disposition of that matter, and then Senator Cummins submitted a proposal for unanimous consent agreement that provided for a postponement of the consideration of the income tax matter until after the schedules in the tariff bill had been disposed of and then making the Bailey-Cummins amendment the order of business until it was "disposed of by a direct vote."

At the suggestion of a direct votet Senators Aldrich and Hale shook their heads in disapproval and Mr. Aldrich promptly suggested that it was extraordinary to make any arrangement by unanimous consent which foreclosed any Senator's right to offer any motion under the rules.

This spurred Senator Bailey into action and he said that he was well aware of Senator Aldrich's intention to offer a substitute and to try to dispose of the income tax amendment by a motion to refer it to the Judiciary Committee. He said that the Senator from Rhode Island had been "dragooned" into giving his support to the corporation tax proposition, and when some other Senator inquired of Mr. Aldrich when the corporation tax substitute would be submitted to the Senate the Senator from Texas offered the suggestion that it could no be submitted until the Attorney-General had finished preparing it for the com-

"I think I can assure the Senator that the substitute will be submitted to the Senate as early as next Monday," said Mr.

Senator Borah seemed satisfied with this statement, but Senator Cummins made an earnest appeal to Chairman Aldrich to consent to an agreement which would insure a direct vote on the income tax amendment. But Mr. Aldrich insisted that to do so would set a precedent in Senate procedure, and Senator Lodge

"Has the Senator from Mississippi read the amendment?" quizzed Mr. Aldrich, with a broad smile.

"Oh. yes," replied Senator McLaurin, who renewed his request for an immediate vote and pressed it with great earnestness. Finally Senator Aldrich suggested that Mr. McLaurin was too clever a man not to appreciate the humor of the suggestion he had made, whereupon the Senator from Mississippi sat down and enjoyed his joke. Then Senator Aldrich, with his joke. Then Senator Aidrich, with only two minutes remaining, urged Mr. Bailey to consent to a request which he had submitted for unanimous consent, omitting the direct vote. He warned him that if he did not consent the Senate would adjourn in a minute and that his income tax amandment, would then less tax amendment would then lose income

There is no doubt that an agreement will be reached to-morrow by which the income tax amendment and the corpora-tion tax substitute will be taken up and considered after the regular schedules in the bill have been concluded

Other speakers also denounced that with them quietly, by himself.

Dartmouth man. President Tucker says so, and that's enough for me. There are a good many good Dartmouth men who have never won the Dartmouth A. B., and Dr. Nichols is one of them."

"Of course we looked first among the Dartmouth gradautes for a man to take the place that Dr. Tucker has left vacant," said Mr. Mathewson. "But if we could not get a good graduate we were resolved to offer the position to aman who seemed to be a true Dartmouth man, and our thoughts early turned toward Dr. Nichols."

thoughts early turned toward Dr. Nichols."

He expressed his confidence in Dr. Nichols's scholarly attributes, not only in his own department of physics, in which he has measured the force with which a beam of light comes plumping down to earth from the sun and the heat of starlight, but in the humanities. Mr. Mathewson said that he thought they weren't going to be slighted under the presidency of Dr. Nichols:

That was the signal for Arthur T. Soule of the class of 1908 to hop on a chair and

"When I was in Boston to-day," said he, "I looked over the plans for the new gymnasium. I consider the new gymnasium as the mark of the beginning of a newer Dartmouth. Many expressions of the noble in art and science have come from men owning to weak and crippled bodies. and many a dyspantic has told the president-elect of the college to the whole body of loyal alumni."

Judge Hough said that he hoped that Dartmouth would still stand for the democratio ideal, without which, he said, no college could be a real college. "Dartmouth." said ho, "used to attract men whose sinews had hardened with work on the farm. Now she stands ready to receive the newer immigration. Dartmouth always aims to make citizens." receive the newer immigration Dartmouth always aims to make citizens."

The oldest alumnus there last night to meet Dr. Nichols was Wentworth S Butler, '48. George Haseltine, '54, was a close second. Others were Dr. Charles L. Dans, Dr. Charles E. Quimby, John J. Hopper, ex-Judge William N. Cohen, Philip Carpenter, George J. Carr. Otis E. Hovey and Dr. Rufus B. Richardson, a Yale man himself, but for a good many years professor of Greek in Dartmouth. The alumni didn't go when the speeches were finished. They stayed around and sang songs and shook hands with Dr. Nichols.

The suspicion that advantage was taken to advertise private business interests was condemned. The resolution interests was condemned. The resolution disapproving the work of the Dickinson supporters was then passed unanimously and was so ordered to be recorded on the minutes.

Another matter that came before the alumni and escaped general attention was the report of the work of securing subscriptions for the equipment of the alumni field and playground. Beginning in 1902 the alumni raised about $45,000 with which to grade an athletic field and playground. That work has been accomplished but the field halain practically unused because it has not been equipped with stands, a clubhouse and other necessities to make it the great playground and athletic home of the students.
